

Knowing when a person is getting closer to passing

There are some common signs when people are getting closer to passing. The changes are usually peaceful, progressive and not sudden.

See and hear

Breathing differently - rattly breathing or long pauses between breaths

More time in bed

Less time awake

Not eating or drinking

Changes to skin colour

Skin feels cold

Confused

Restless

Having difficulty swallowing

Less interested in storytelling, yarning, or joining in

Do

Stay with your loved one

Call your family kinship to come pay their respects and say their last goodbyes

Contact the clinic to get help if you need

Knowing when a person has passed

See and hear

Breathing stops and the muscles and movement of the stomach and chest stops

No heartbeat or pulse can be felt or heard

Pupils don't move

The person cannot be woken up

Eyes and mouth may close or may be half open

After death occurs the person's body may relax and release air, noises or other body fluids.

Do

Your loved one may look different to you.

Do traditional ways, ceremonies, rituals after your loved one has passed to help them to pass into the Dreaming

When you are ready, ring the clinic to verify that your loved one has passed
